

General Discussion Questions on Racism

Whose perspective is prioritized in the narrative, and how does that shape our understanding of racism?

How does the author address the impact of racism on a character's sense of identity or self-worth?

How do characters resist, challenge, or conform to systemic racism?

Does the work invite readers to reflect on their own biases or privileges?

Which aspects of racism depicted in the text remain relevant today?