

General Discussion Questions on Intolerance

In stories where intolerance is central, does the narrative usually favor reconciliation or revenge? Why?

How is intolerance linked to fear, ignorance, or power?

How do characters respond to intolerance—through resistance, adaptation, or complicity?

Can acts of intolerance serve as a critique of real-world social systems?

What lessons about empathy and justice can readers draw from literary depictions of intolerance?